

- What do I want to learn or understand better?

Previous weeks I have felt that I didn't have sufficient knowledge of scrum but I feel that I am starting to grasp the concept more and more as we start applying it in reality. My goal for the next sprint is to learn more about how to create even better user stories and how to "split the cake", as I thought this was a big challenge this week.

- How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

Last sprint I said that I wanted to learn more about how to efficiently estimate our velocity and effort at the beginning of sprints. I thought that this has been difficult and I therefore decided to watch some YouTube videos on the subject this week. I will share what I've learnt with the team and hopefully I can use this knowledge to help us as a team to work more efficiently.

- What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

As previous sprints I have participated in all of our meetings and been active. I have also continued to learn about Scrum and apply what I learn in our meetings.

- What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

This sprint I worked on a user story regarding some fixes to our login functionality. We had a problem where the user was not logged in properly even though he/she entered the correct email and password. This is now solved and everyone can now login and access their homepage.
