

- What do I want to learn or understand better?

Last week I wrote that I wanted to get better at “splitting the cake” in terms of creating user stories. During the weekend I watched some videos on how to write and split user stories efficiently. I feel that I have got a better understanding thanks to this. Currently the main challenge for me is regards to using React and the user stories that I am working on. I have not used React much before this which means that I constantly need to look things up on the internet. Thus I will focus on learning React better during the next sprint.

- How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

As I have watched videos on how to create good user stories, I will try to apply the tips and tricks during our next sprint planning meeting. Hopefully this can help us reach our goals that we set at the beginning of the course during these last two sprints.

- What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

As during previous sprints I have participated in all of our meetings and been active. I have also continued to learn about Scrum.

- What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

This week we had a lot of issues with the user story that me and my two team partners worked on. The implementation was really complex and no one has real knowledge of React. Hence, we did not manage to finish the user story. We will however keep working on it during the weekend and hopefully finish it in the next sprint.
